

A yellow triangle pointing downwards, located to the left of the 'IN THE NEWS' header.

IN THE NEWS

Bloomberg Law Quotes Partner Ben Struby on Franchisee Bankruptcies, What to Look For

Bloomberg Law

05/05/2023 | less than a minute

Bloomberg Law quoted Partner Ben Struby in a piece covering recent notable fast food franchisee bankruptcy filings. Amid rising labor and food costs, ballooning interest rates and demands for upgrades and operational improvements, margins for many fast-food chain operators have been tight.

Struby said he had been increasingly telling franchisor clients to “keep a new eye on franchisees” for signs of trouble that might require intervention. Inconsistencies, like delayed fee payments or sudden failure to communicate, can be cause for concern. A possible hike in franchisee bankruptcies is “something to be concerned about,” he said.

Read the full article here [SUBSCRIPTION REQUIRED]: Fast Food Franchisee Bankruptcies Portend Industrywide Struggles.

Related People

Benjamin (Ben) C. Struby

Partner

Kansas City

816.460.5758

benjamin.struby@lathropgpm.com

Related Services

Financial Services

[Franchise Reorganization
& Bankruptcy](#)

[Bankruptcy, Restructuring
& Creditors' Rights](#)