01/25/2021 | less than a minute

Partner Joseph Growney was quoted in the Investment News cover story "Dramatic Changes to Legislation Seem Unlikely Despite Full Democratic Control."

In the Jan. 25, 2021 regulation-focused article, Growney provided his perspectives as a Private Client Services attorney on future investment and tax policy changes.

"It's too early to project tax policy," Growney said in the article following the 2020 U.S. elections. "There are still obstacles Biden and Democrats will have to overcome when dealing with such a narrow majority."

"If I'm the GOP, I'm looking at Joe Manchin," Growney said. Manchin could be a deal maker or deal breaker along the lines of "a swing vote on the Supreme Court. We could see that in a 50-50 Senate."
