Technology and the Workplace: Week in Review (The Jobs Edition, Take Two)

We featured Steve Jobs in this space only a short time ago when he retired as CEO of Apple, and his death this week has compelled us to showcase Jobs again. Many, many tributes and remembrances were written this week, and you can find a few that provide insight into Jobs' vision, personality and legacy below.

For the last several weeks we've featured articles that explore prospective employer recruiting, information-seeking and monitoring via social network research. A recent start-up, Reppler, helps people manage their online professional and personal reputation. A survey taken by Reppler, and described in a fascinating Forbes article, describes the characteristics a typical employer hopes to find online about prospective employees. It is worth noting that Reppler's corporate parent is named
