The Fight Over PFAS in Food is About to Get More Intense

Legal tensions surrounding PFAS in food have intensified in recent years, and they are likely to become more heated. We suggest that there are four steps companies can proactively take to enhance customer safety and limit possible damages related to PFAS litigation, including:

- Determine the source of the PFAS
- Determine how the liability – and risk – could be spread
- Know that civil liability often comes with regulatory liability
- Make sure your records are good
