COURT MEMBERSHIPS

- Minnesota
- North Dakota
- South Dakota

Kathryn Nash chairs the firm's Labor, Employment, and Higher Education practice areas. She regularly advises colleges and universities on a wide range of issues unique to higher education institutions, such as Clery, Title IX, the Violence Against Women Reauthorization Act, HEOA, FERPA, student affairs, faculty issues, and child safety prevention and response. Kathryn is well known among higher education attorneys and policymakers for her work advising and leading sexual misconduct and harassment investigations and revising institutional policies.

Kathryn has developed extensive experience advising organizations on the complex issues relating to child safety prevention and response. Kathryn regularly assists organizations in navigating how to respond to reports of child abuse, including reporting to appropriate government officials, notifying impacted community members, and conducting investigations. Kathryn has also served as an outside independent investigator into individual reports of abuse. In addition, Kathryn has conducted external independent reviews of organizations' past handling of reports of abuse and has provided recommendations for prevention and response efforts moving forward. In addition, Kathryn advises employers on a variety of legal issues, including terminations and RIFs; disability and leave issues; affirmative action plans; employment and severance agreements; unemployment compensation matters, employee handbooks, and policies; noncompetition and other post-employment restrictions; wage and hour issues; child labor issues; and independent contract arrangements.

- U.S. District Court for the District of Colorado
- U.S. District Court for the District of Minnesota
- U.S. Court of Appeals for the Eighth District

EDUCATION

University of Minnesota Law School, J.D., cum laude, 2001

Bethel University, B.A., cum laude, 1998

Kathryn regularly represents institutions and businesses in administrative actions and litigation when employment or student affairs related claims arise. She also assists clients in responding to state and federal audits relating to affirmative action and wage and hour compliance. Kathryn has extensive experience advising faith-based nonprofits, churches and religious K-12 schools, and higher education institutions on issues that are unique to these organizations.

Kathryn has been quoted in The Economist and The Atlantic, as well as local television and radio outlets, as an authority on matters pertaining to Title IX, VAWA, and sexual violence on campus. She was honored as one of the 2014 Minnesota Attorneys of the Year by Minnesota Lawyer for her engaging and innovative approach to providing legal services to higher education institutions.

trainED

Kathryn co-founded trainEDTM, an outgrowth and extension of Lathrop GPM's higher education practice. trainED is a nationally recognized provider of higher education training and compliance services. Through trainED, our higher education attorneys provide online training modules for students, faculty, and staff that satisfy Title IX and VAWA training obligations. Kathryn is a known authority on matters pertaining to Title IX, VAWA, and sexual violence on campus, and was praised by the Minneapolis Star Tribune as a "leading national expert on campus sexual assault." Visit trainedsolutions.com to learn more about trainED services.
