Julia Gowin is a partner in the firm's Los Angeles office focusing her practice on all aspects of complex civil litigation including product liability, premises liability, toxic and mass torts and environmental law. Julia has over a decade of experience in the areas of asbestos and silica defense, and she currently acts as national coordinating counsel in cosmetic talc litigation. Throughout the years, Julia has managed the litigation for multiple mass tort clients with cases pending in state and federal courts across the country. She is masterful at managing complex national dockets involving coordinated written discovery, experts, motion practice, and trial strategy.

Julia represents a wide range of clients in product and premises liability matters including pharmaceutical and medical device companies; property owners, manufacturers, and retailers involved in claims of injury from various chemicals, toxins, and consumer products; window manufacturers involved in construction and product defect claims; car and boat manufacturers involved in catastrophic or other injury claims; and companies sued for Proposition 65 warning violations throughout California. She focuses on the defense of negligence and strict liability actions involving latent diseases from exposure to various products, raw materials, and other toxins.

Julia also enjoys legal writing. Within her California practice, she has drafted numerous dispositive motions at the trial court level, petitions for writ of mandate, opening and respondents' briefs at the appellate level, and petitions for review to the California Supreme Court. At the national level, Julia implements the law and motion strategy and oversees all legal briefing for her clients. Prior to joining Lathrop GPM

- Member and Submissions Editor of the Southern California Law Review
