Employers face an array of health, safety, and legal challenges as a large number of the population become vaccinated and businesses prepare for a new phase of pandemic response that includes more employees returning to work sites. Business executives and HR professionals are grappling with difficult questions every day on issues ranging from worksite safety, vaccine approaches and HIPAA considerations, remote work approaches and policies to employee accommodation and leave rights. In this 90-minute webinar, Lathrop GPM labor & employment attorneys Megan Anderson, Mark Mathison, and Jill Waldman, and health law attorney Julia Reiland, will discuss these key issues:

- Safety obligations to employees and third parties
- Vaccination considerations and approaches
- The push for continued remote work
- Employment accommodations and leave rights
