Lawyers USA: Going Green - The Legal Profession is Reducing the Carbon Footprint

November 1, 2008

In the burgeoning green culture, law firms' eco-responsible practices stretch from the courtroom to the kitchen. The escalating energy costs and climate change concerns that have spurred the society-wide green movement in the U.S. have also prompted clients to expect a commitment to green practices from their lawyers. Read more ...