Inside Washington Publishers: Missouri Case Could Test EPA's Use of 'Flow' as Stormwater Surrogate

June 29, 2011

Inside Washington Publishers recently featured an article discussing the complaint filed in June by Lathrop Gage clients against the EPA in the U.S. District Court for the Western District of Missouri, that argues the total maximum daily load the agency issued earlier this year for Hinkson Creek in Columbia, Mo. violates the terms of the Clean Water Act, the Administrative Procedure Act and the National Environmental Act. Read more ...