

KCBJ: This Holds the Future of Health Savings

November 10, 2016

Partner Randal Schultz tells the Kansas City Business Journal that telemedicine, interacting with doctors and health providers via smartphones and other portable devices, offers a powerful tool for healthcare savings. While some apps presently exist, many limit provider interaction to a panel of nurses. “There are very few situations where you can talk directly to your doctor,” Schultz says. Read more here.