

Minnesota Public Radio Interviews Megan Anderson on Working from Home

May 12, 2020

Minnesota Public Radio interviewed Labor & Employment partner Megan Anderson for a radio broadcast and related article published on mprnews.org, "Workplace Protections Still Apply When You Work From Home." The broadcast and article discuss legal issues related to employees working from home that many employers may not have anticipated - from privacy and ergonomics to on-the-job injuries and tracking employees' hours. In the broadcast/article, Megan addresses workplace regulations that may now apply to employees' homes, noting: "I would hope that the regulators are going to give employers a little bit of grace."