Environmental partners Bill Beck and Ally Cunningham were quoted in the Bloomberg Law article, "PFAS Study Seen Bolstering Medical Monitoring Requests," [SUBSCRIPTION REQUIRED]. The article addresses a recent report published by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's (CDC) Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry (ATSDR) regarding PFAS in drinking water at 10 different exposure sites.

In the article, Beck and Cunningham explain how and why plaintiffs' attorneys will be likely to "use the study's results in combination with a second recent federal report to bolster their requests for medical monitoring in states that allow those requests."
