Lathrop GPM is pleased to welcome Richard Beem and Alex Shtraym to the firm's Intellectual Property Litigation Practice Group. Beem joins the Chicago office as a partner and Shtraym joins the Dallas office as an associate. They recently spoke with Law360 about their goals with this move and hope to further develop and expand the intellectual property practice at Lathrop GPM.

"My goal in coming to Lathrop is to help develop the intellectual property practice both geographically and in terms of the clientele...One of the unique things about my practice is that I've worked nationally and internationally, between litigation and transactional practices," Beem said. "That's somewhat unique in this practice in addition to my ability to work within the geographic focus as well."
