

Lori Wiese-Parks Named in Minnesota Business' 2014 The (Real) Power 50

February 19, 2014

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (February 19, 2014) — The law firm of Gray Plant Mooty is pleased to share that Lori Wiese-Parks, a principal in our Minneapolis office, has been recognized in Minnesota Business' The (Real) Power 50.

The (Real) Power 50 is an honor that celebrates 50 of the most important people to know for conducting business in the state of Minnesota - calling them remarkable players in the Minnesota business community with a knack for getting things done. Minnesota Business describes those named to the list as the linchpins in their company, the connectors in their industry, the heart of the operation, and the ones who make things happen. Individuals are nominated by Minnesota Business and by a select group of high-powered individuals whom Minnesota Business hand-picks.

Wiese-Parks focuses her practice on the business and transactional aspects of intellectual property use and protection in all facets of business from organization to bankruptcy, acquisition, merger and termination, and everything in between. Within intellectual property, she specializes in the identification, protection, and management of intellectual property assets on a global basis. She represents clients of all types and sizes in diverse industries, ranging from software development and distribution to medical services and devices to food and beverage.
