

Lathrop Gage Named a Go-To Law Firm for Technology Industry by American Lawyer

March 20, 2008

Lathrop Gage has been selected as a "Go-To Law Firm for Leading Technology Companies" by American Lawyer Media for 2008. In-House Law Departments at the Leading Technology Companies, published by ALM, includes the short list of elite U.S. firms that represent the top technology companies. 2008 marks the first edition of this publication.

General Counsel at technology companies were asked to identify the firms that they consider to be the best at providing legal services to the industry, in categories such as litigation, corporate transactions, intellectual property, and labor & employment. American Lawyer Media staff added to this with research of its own, to come up with the final list of honored firms.

Lathrop Gage counts among its clients not only cutting-edge, start-up companies specializing in Internet services, but also traditional manufacturing and retail businesses beginning or expanding on-line commerce and other technology-based business models. Lathrop Gage attorneys have drafted and reviewed numerous agreements for clients on e-commerce and Internet-related issues, and have represented clients on issues related to online contracting, payment systems, and Federal Trade Commission regulation of e-commerce activities, telecommunications and Internet telephony issues.
