Being an attorney is more than just a career. It's a way to make a real difference in clients' lives while giving back to the legal community. I am committed to guiding clients through disputes with their best interests at heart, helping them make informed decisions to achieve the best possible outcomes. One client said, "Alison is a leader among other attorneys in the community. She is one of the most empathetic attorneys I know and represents her clients well. She is a true advocate for her clients and colleagues."

Alison Zinn is a dedicated advocate and trial attorney. She helps individuals and families navigate the complexities of disputes involving trusts and estates, guardianships, and conservatorships. She also represents a variety of professional fiduciaries serving the roles of personal representative, trustee, conservator, and guardian.

Committed to compassionate and efficient dispute resolution, whether through mediation or trial, Alison is known for listening deeply to clients, ensuring they feel understood before developing tailored solutions to their legal challenges. Her personalized approach allows her to build a strong foundation of trust and provides a more effective advocacy experience for clients.

With extensive experience in trust and estate litigation, Alison handles disputes involving:

- Breach of Fiduciary Duty
- Obtaining or Contesting Conservatorships
- Obtaining or Contesting Guardianships

Areas of Focus

Services

Trust & Estate Litigation

Private Client Services

- The validity of trusts and wills
- Trust and Estate Administration

Alison previously represented commercial clients in banking, mortgage-backed securities, insurance, and construction defect litigation, which enhanced her ability to handle complex litigation matters. Despite her involvement in large-scale cases, she also values working with families on a more personal level.

As a Fellow of the American College of Trust and Estate Counsel, Alison is part of a distinguished group of lawyers and law professors selected by peers for their exceptional professional reputation and experience. She has been named one of Colorado's Top Lawyers in Probate Litigation by 5280 Magazine, and her leadership and service have been featured in ColoradoBiz Magazine and the Denver Business Journal. Chambers has also recognized her for Private Wealth Law for two years. Clients value her strategic approach, adeptness in handling complex cases and dedication to ensuring their voices are heard.
